

Springs Valley Welcomes the New Coordinated School Health Manager

Jamie Walker joined Orange County as the Manager of Coordinated School Health in June. The Manager of Coordinated School Health is a funded position created through IU Health at no cost to the county schools. The position is a full-time role through IU Health in working with the Orange County schools to promote and implement school health initiatives. Mrs. Walker earned a Bachelor of Science in science education and a Master of Science in geological science. The last 16 she has worked as a high school science teacher at Brownstown Central Highschool and Salem High School. Although this position is new as an IU Health position, the job will also be a support for ongoing orange county community initiatives run through various organizations. Orange County is grateful to Indiana University Health in Bloomington that allowed for such an exciting position to come to life.
